

ABSTRACT

The post-synthetic modification of RNA for the delivery of the RNA to a mammalian cell is described. The modifications enhance resistant of the RNA to nuclease digestion and delivery of the RNA to the cell whether the RNA is delivered alone or in combination with a transfection agent. Activity of the RNA in the cell is maintained.